Adviser | Human Resources Management

United Nations (UN) entities (funds and programmes, specialized agencies, offices and departments of the UN Secretariat, related organizations and peacekeeping and political missions in the field) are requested to report on their implementation of the UN Disability Inclusion Strategy. This reporting form will be used by UN entities to report performance on the Strategy's Entity Accountability Framework.

The Strategy was launched by the Secretary-General in June 2019 to raise the UN's performance on disability inclusion across the UN system. Reporting on its implementation will enable an assessment of the extent to which disability inclusion is mainstreamed within the Organization's work, spotlight good practice and identify key areas which may require development of staff knowledge and capacity, technical resources, and assistance.

Entity reports inform the Secretary-General's report on system-wide implementation of the Strategy, which is prepared by the Disability Team in the Executive Office of the Secretary-General under the supervision of his Senior Adviser on Policy. The system-wide report is submitted annually to the General Assembly in its regular session.

The Entity Progress Report on the implementation of the UN Disability Inclusion Strategy must be submitted to the Executive Office of the Secretary-General (EOSG) via the online reporting platform. Entities may wish to use the excel form (available below), which follows the reporting platform structure, to undertake their self-assessment and upload the information to the platform once the information is collated.

Individual entity reports will not be published.

The UNAIDS secretariat provides political leadership for the global AIDS response. The role of the Executive Director to advocate for inclusion and for ensuring that noone is left behind is critical. At the end of 2019, Winnie Byanyima was appointed as the new Executive Director of UNAIDS. Her vision, as set out to the the 45th meeting of the UNAIDS Programme Coordinating Board in December, focuses on the profound gaps in the HIV response. In her speech to the Board, she explicitly mentioned people with disabilities among those groups whose rights are being violated. During the course of the year, moreover, other senior officials advocated for inclusion. For example, in July, the Executive Director a.i. launched the Global AIDS update report 2019 which includes a section that highlights how people with disabilities are often left behind by HIV responses along with an example of a regional project in western and central Africa, aimed at making regional and national HIV laws, strategies and policies more inclusive of people with disabilities.

2. Challenge: Lack of available disaggregated data demonstrating the intersection between HIV and disability across regions is one reason why progress for this indicator is stalled.

The UNAIDS 2016–2021 Strategy: On the Fast-Track to End AIDS is a bold call to reach people being left behind. It explicitly sets out how HIV-related discrimination is interwoven with other forms of discrimination including based on disability. It asserts that “People with disabilities are at higher risk of HIV infection because they are vulnerable to violence, sexual abuse and stigma and discrimination, while often struggling to obtain meaningful service access.” It calls for enhanced capacity-building support to significantly increase availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data disaggregated, inter alia, by disability which reflects a commitment of the global community set out in Agenda for Sustainable Development and to be achieved by 2020.

Provide explanation for each of the components including actions taken and data sources. Please include information and examples from both HQ and the field.

UNAIDS 2016-2021 Strategy stipulates: In all regions of the world, punitive laws, policies and practices continue to violate human rights and maintain structural conditions that leave populations without access to HIV services. HIV-related discrimination is often deeply interwoven with other forms of discrimination based on gender, sexual orientation and gender identity, race, disability, drug use, immigration status and being a sex worker, prisoner.

In the Resolution adopted by the UN General Assembly on 8 June 2016 - Political Declaration on HIV and AIDS: On the Fast Track to Accelerating the Fight against HIV and to Ending the AIDS Epidemic by 2030, it is said: Accelerate efforts to increase significantly the availability of high-quality, timely and reliable data, including on incidence and prevalence, disaggregated by income, sex, mode of transmission, age, race, ethnicity, migratory status, disability, marital status, geographic location and other characteristics relevant in national contexts.

-Report on Disability and HIV: highlights existing key evidence on the relationship between disability and HIV. It discusses the concrete steps needed for a person-centred, disability-inclusive HIV response that allows for increased participation of people with disabilities and integrates rehabilitation within the continuum of HIV care.

Opportunities

*As part of the UNDIS reporting, a working group of focal points (HQ and Field) was formally established with the mandate to bring suggestions for progress to UNAIDS Cabinet. The involvement of some 30 staff members can serve a new dynamism for mainstreaming disability inclusion across programmatic and operational workstreams.

*Longtime and formal Focal Point on Disability in Community Support Department for programmatic issues and newly appointed Focal Point in Human Resources Department for operational issues.

Challenges

*Mainstreaming disability inclusion is sometimes seen as an add on to staff members work and perceived as a competing priority. Consistently applying inclusive design principles and communicating about intersection of disability and HIV and disability, should help alleviate this perception.

Noting this response is for UNAIDS HQ office in Geneva only.

Information on UNAIDS accessibility at HQ is collected in an ad hoc manner. UNAIDS HQ building is jointly owned with WHO and located on the WHO HQ campus. UNAIDS HQ premises was constructed in 2006 and adheres to local Swiss accessibility laws and regulations. There has not been a systematic assessment done of the accessibility of UNAIDS offices in Geneva.

Although there are projects to upgrade the HQ premises for sight impaired staff and visitors (braille map, audio guide system, upgrade restaurant service area), there is no tracking of upgrades.

Most larger conferences, meetings and events are rarely held on site and often in WHO premises therefore UNAIDS is dependent on other entities.

Nor a systematic assessment of UNAIDS country offices (80+), the majority of which are located in UN common premises.

UNAIDS HQ premises in Geneva is jointly owned with WHO and is located on the WHO campus. Although a relatively new building, we are working with WHO to upgrade HQ conference accessibility, including the installation of a braille site map, an audio guide system to allow site impaired staff and visitors to find their way independently around the building, and some modifications to the restaurant to facilitate wheel chair access to the food service area.
UNAIDS establishes guidelines on the accessibility of its conference and advocates for better accessibility of for conferences it supports e.g., International AIDS Society (2021)

The WHO Policy on the Employment of Persons with Disabilities (issued in August 2010) applies. It includes in paragraphs 14-16 relevant provisions on reasonable accommodation for employees. The policy includes a provision for visitors and meeting participants (para. 26).

The policy indicates that the Health and Medical Service should determine nature and extent of the accommodation required.

Approval or denial rests with the hiring manager or the supervisor respectively.

Confidentiality is respected (para. 31).

A monitoring mechanism is included (para. 28-30) yet still to be followed at UNAIDS.

Paragraph 27 commits to periodic information dissemination, awareness raising and learning activities and complementary communication strategies.

The policy is not systematically implemented and an assessment of it has not been done.

The UNAIDS Evaluation Policy (para 25) states that "Evaluation is guided by the people-centered approach of UNAIDS, which enhances capabilities, choices and rights for all people, with full respect for diversity. (...) The universally recognized values and principles of human rights and gender equality need to be integrated into all stages of an evaluation. It is the responsibility of evaluators and evaluation managers to ensure that these values are respected, addressed and promoted, underpinning the commitment to the principle of "no-one left behind". UNAIDS follows UNEG guidance on the conduct of human rights and gender-responsive evaluations (see UNEG Human Rights and Gender Equality guidance)". Additionally, UNAIDS has customized the UNEG Human Rights Guidance to HIV response needs. The UNAIDS guidance on Human Rights in evaluation reiterates the concept of no one left behind, and provides one example, under the indicators sections, of looking into discrimination due to disability status.

In 2020 update and include a section on disability in ' Integrating Human Rights and Gender Equality into UNAIDS Evaluations' internal guidance – to make requirements more explicit for future evaluations. More efforts are needed to explicitly consider disability issues in the design and implementation of UNAIDS evaluations. This will be based on UNAIDS goals and ongoing work on disability (a person-centered, disability-inclusive HIV response that allows for increased participation of people with disabilities) and also considering case-by-case evaluation relevance. In the context of human rights and ensuring that no one is left behind, needs related to disability should be given specific attention from the onset of evaluations. As per UNEG Norms and Standards, evaluation data should be disaggregated by social criteria, including disability, where relevant.

Q6 Additional Information

Please provide additional information on the following elements:

1. Additional information (i.e. opportunities and challenges in implementing the indicator) not included above.
2. Main reasons why your entity has been able to progress on disability inclusion or the main factors that have stalled progress for this indicator

The Independent Evaluation Office in UNAIDS is new; it was established as a structurally and functionally independent unit in 2019. The number of evaluations is growing - as shown in the UNAIDS 2020-2021 Evaluation Plan. In 2019, evaluations had more of an organizational than programmatic focus, and were thus less suited for analysis of disability inclusion. Evaluations planned for 2020 and 2021 - for instance on data use, gender based violence and key populations will have more scope for analysis of disability inclusion.

 Q4 Actions planned and timeline to maintain/enhance progress (Required)

An MOU was signed in October 2019 between UNAIDS and Handicap International Federation (HI) to provide high quality services that support strengthening a culture where UNAIDS staff members with disability are treated with respect and sensitivity and to promote inclusive and sensitive behaviours towards the most vulnerable population that UNAIDS is mandated to serve in achieving universal access to HIV prevention, treatment, care and support.

Capacity building initiatives and trainings will be planned to strengthen staff competencies and skills to build greater sensitivity to people with disability and the most vulnerable in the organization specifically and in services provided by UNAIDS staff for the larger society and stakeholders. The learning and training initiatives will be implemented in collaboration with HI on activities including:

1. Define training needs and success indicators to strengthen capacity of staff in country offices to scale up disability inclusive HIV programming in Fast Track countries and other settings in collaboration with HI and the UNAIDS technical focal point.
2. Implement mandatory trainings on Inclusive Leadership and diversity with special focus on competencies that foster sensitivity to People with disability.

UNAIDS terminology guidelines ensure that internal and external communication are respectful of persons with disabilities.

Persons with disabilities are reflected in mainstream communications: for example, most flagship publications have a section on persons with disabilities.

Care is taken to reflect the diversity of the population of persons with disabilities in our publications and intersectionality issues are also considered.

More needs to be done to consolidate the achievements of the programmatic targets by actively including people with disability in UNAIDS work, including as formal UNAIDS staff, widely sharing and implementing existing global guidance and experience on HIV and Disability.
- The recently formalized network of disability inclusion focal points has great potential to advocate for progress, operationalize the UNDIS and and implement actions.
- There is cooperation and willingness by various departments to take steps towards compliance with the UNDIS yet a perceived 'competition' with other priorities needs to be addressed going forward.
