

HUMAN RIGHTS MARKER

[Reference: UNInfo]

Code	Definition	Guidance
0	Not expected to contribute to realization of human rights	There is no consideration of human rights issues and there are no results relating to human rights.
1	Limited contribution to realization of human rights	There is limited consideration of human rights. For example, there may have been a human rights analysis or participation key stakeholders including rights holders in the activity, but other key elements are not identified. Accordingly, contribution to human rights is minor to the overall outcomes of the initiative.
2	Significant contribution to realization of human rights	At least three (3) of the six (6) Human Rights Marker element for coding are identified. Activity therefore makes a substantial contribution toward the realization of human rights
3	Principal contribution is the realization of human rights	Primary or principal contribution of the activity is towards the realization of human rights. 5-6 of the 6 HR Marker elements listed below are evident in the activity.

**Human Rights Marker elements for coding

1. Activity is explicitly grounded in the enjoyment or fulfilment of human rights (or lack thereof).
2. The normative framework and/or the outcomes from treaty bodies/UPR or special procedures are used to inform the activity.
3. Activity targets patterns of discrimination, inequality or marginalization.
4. References to 'rights holders' and/or 'duty bearers' with respective responsibilities and entitlements.
5. Participation and meaningful engagement of various stakeholder including the beneficiary groups/rights holders incorporated into the activity.
6. Issues identified through a thorough human rights analysis, including from a gender perspective, and addressed through capacity development.